FISHING TRIP ENDS WITH ONE DROWNING

James Barton, Aged 12, Falls From Barge to His Death

TRAGEDY IS THE FIRST

Accident Occurs As Only
One of Spring Thus Far—Body Recovered

James M. Barton, the 12-year old son of Mr. and Mrs. James Barton of Houston Run, was drowned Thursday evening at 5 o'clock in the Monongahela river near the Cincinnati coal mines.

He was fishing from a fleet of coal barges and while walking along the edge of one of the barges lost his balance and fell into the river. The alarm was immediately given, but it was too late to rescue the child. The body was recovered from the water about 8 o'clock Thursday night and taken to the home of his parents.

This is the first drowning accident of the fishing season. A great many children are to be seen fishing along the river each evening.

The water where the lad fell in is 15 or 20 feet deep and this interfered with the body being recovered sooner.

CHARLEROI LOSES TO THE BRAVES

Charleroi's percent is now one-half a thousand as a result of the McKeesporters getting revenge for their defeat by Charleroi the first game of the opening series at that town. Manager Charles O'Day and his tribe came home Thursday night, not too stricken especially, but very sorry that the score of Thursday was 6 to 3 in McKeesport's favor.

The big doings happened in the seventh inning. Up until that time Hogg had been pitching. Three men got on bases. Hogg was in a hole, and a bunch of left-handed batters were due. O'Day deftly removed Hogg from the scene of action and figuring that a left-hander ought to stop left-handed batters, he sent in Damon. But McKeesport's bats were full of hits. They swatted merrily and coupled with a few errors, let McKeesport score five runs and that was enough to win. At the beginning of

Good Roads' Committees
Lay Plans for Transporting Workers

PROMISE FAIR WEATHER

Only That Necessary to Make
Next Tuesday a Day of Importance to Community

According to the general committee it is very essential that every one having automobiles be on hand with them Tuesday morning for Good Roads day. The indications are that there will be over 200 men to take out on the roads. A great many men who have not been listed among the workers, have signified their intention of doing a little road work that day. They feel that for one day they will be able to lay down the burdens and worries of their business and get a regular outing.

The team committee is still hard at work procuring teams. They report that they will have a goodly number at each road to be worked.

The dinner committee is assuring the prospective workers that they are going to have a real treat for them in the picnic dinner. They have not selected the dinner location yet. They will select some central place where all the workmen will be taken at 1 o'clock. This promises to be one of the biggest events of the day.

The good road enthusiasts are saying, "If we only can have a nice day May 26." Fair weather is promised.

LITTLE DANGER OF A KISSING STRIKE.

Mrs. Havelock Ellis may be right in predicting that if women would "refuse to cook or wash for their husbands, refuse to kiss or even look at them" they would get the vote in a surprisingly short time, remarks the Pittsburg Press. But luckily for the peace and concord of several million households, there is a reason why the woman will do no such thing.

In this matter of kissing it takes two to do it right. Pater would miss his daily kiss; but mater would miss it, too—that kind of boycott would cut both ways. But lest any iron-willed wife should think of experimenting as Mrs. Ellis suggests, let it be said once more that it is not the men who are in the way of votes for women.

Only here and there do you find a male curmudgeon who is stubbornly set against equal suffrage. Many are indifferent but few are hostile. And the indifferent ones can more easily be won by an increase of kissing than by a household strike.

Delilah's morals may not have been up to the best standards even of her questionable time; but she knew how to handle Samson all right—he was like the potter's clay in her hands. Men of today are not very different from Samson, except perhaps in the matter of brute strength. Most of them are meek candidates for the shearing. So if kissing has to enter at all into an equation which is ready one for the intellect our recipe would be not less kissing but more.

A CHAMPION COKE YEAR

Statistics from Washington disclose that the coke production in the United States in 1913 beat all previous records having reached a grand total of 46,311,369 tons, a gain of 2,327,000 tons on the next highest record in the previous year, says the Pittsburg Dispatch. This is a good showing and indicates not only the large demand for coke in iron smelting, but the increased use of it for other industrial purposes.

An interesting feature of this total is furnished by the growth of coke made in retorts and affording an opportunity to utilize the by-products. This has reached a total of 12,714,700 tons. The most marked growth in this class of fuel was in Alabama, where the gain was 50 per cent. In Pennsylvania the increase in the by-products output was 33 per cent.

As industry develops we expect to see this output further increased. The byproduct ovens get more out of the coke, both in the form of fuel and other substances and with the future making fuel more valuable, it is natural to look for the wider use of means to secure the greatest value from the process.

PICKED UP IN PASSING

President Paul B. Wrath of the Charleroi Baseball club, with several years of minor league experiences behind him had a new kind of experience this week that with the superstitious would at once indicate a successful year in Charleroi.

Mr. Wrath visited a lumber company in a nearby town, and among the persons he got in touch with was an old negro. The negro was happy to meet Mr. Wrath and told him over and over again of his loyalty to his team.

Just as Mr. Wreath was about to leave the old colored man thrust his hand into his pocket and brought out a fuzzy little object that it was evident he highly prized. It was a rabbit's foot.

He gave the thing to Mr. Wreath. "Here, Mr. Wreath," he said, "I does want you to win. I know it's a left hand foot—I shot this old rabbit myself, and it'll bring you good luck, sah."

Mr. Wreath is not superstitious, but through courtesy to the man who gave it to him, he will carry the foot.

When the Charleroi Baseball team came to town, it found the ground-keeper a veteran traveler. His name is Adam Wreath and he served in the Spanish-American war and has circled the globe and been in nearly all countries.

"What place in this world do you like the best?" he was asked the other day.

"Hono'lulu," he replied without a moment's hesitation. "It is the coming center, for it has everything."

Charleroi's Live Store

AMONG THE THEATRES

PALACE—CHARLEROI.

"Sonny Jim at the North Pole" was the title of a photoplay at the Palace theatre this week that was a distinct feature. In the production the story is related of a boy, "Sonny Jim" that started out to find the north pole together with his dog Shep. They failed to find the north pole, but they did save a railroad train from a bad wreck. A two-part picture "A Man for a That," with Francis X. Bushman featured was another good picture of this week. A pathetic story of a cripple is held. A war picture "The Sleeping Sentinel" produced by the Lubin makers proved to be an especially interesting film. Manager Burnhart anticipates a good next week.

LYRIC—CHARLEROI.

A number of regular features in addition to pictures of the Charleroi schools and business houses made up the program at the Lyric this week. The pictures taken of the local scenes were made in two parts. The first reel showing pupils of the Second street and Ninth street schools and Charleroi business houses was shown this week. The second part will be ready the first part of next week. "The Peris of Pauline" the first picture of a series to be shown at the local theatre was another of the leading features of the week. It is an interesting and sensational picture, each instalment being a complete story but deftly connected with the previous one.

COYLE—CHARLEROI.

A number of headline attractions formed the program at the Coyle theatre this week. "The Pride of Jennico" related the way in which a naughty, whimsical princess was tamed by love and the effect of the same influence had in humbling a haughty young nobleman. One of the masterpieces of the film world was shown Thursday in "The Strangers of Paris," a remarkable story of the peculiar conditions in Paris nearly a decade ago. The story which held interest that grew with each reel of the play, was made impressive by the beautiful scenes and the prison conditions of that wonderful but wicked city. "Risen from the Ashes" portrays the story of the way of a woman turned ruin to success and the reward she received for her faithful work.

GRAND—PITTSBURG.

In the quality and quantity of the bill booked for the week of May 25th at the Grand Opera House, there is evidence that the festival of the current week is to be carried over. Among the favorites will be Miss Belle Blanche, the young American mimic and prima donna who was featured in Lew Field's production of "The Sun Dodgers." Miss Blanch runs the whole range of dramatic art in her impersonations. She has a wonderful voice. H. K. Guerro, violinist, and Mlle. Carmen form a high class musical team that will be heard in violin and harp solos and duos. Elsie Southgate and sisters will present a refined specialty. Bertee Beaumonte and Jack Arnold will play "The Doctrine," a musical melange of pills and puns. They have a little skit in which she plays the role of a feminist doctor.

The Great Money Savers of the World

In the last twenty-five years have kept the French middle class.

This has been accomplished by the most rigid self denial and the doing without of luxuries which are considered necessary comforts by Americans of the same class.

The Frenchman cuts his garment of daily needs according to the cloth of his earning ability, and sees to it that there are good big generous scraps left for the rainy day account.

Americans may well learn a lesson from their thrifty neighbors across the sea. In this land of plenty everyone can be laying by something, even if it be a very little.
